

Heather Peck: Summary Background

About the Books:

The DCI Geldard Norfolk Mysteries

This series follows DI (later DCI) Greg Geldard from North Yorkshire to Norfolk as he tackles crimes ranging from modern slavery and wildlife smuggling to terrorism, domestic abuse and County Lines.

'I set Greg's adventures in the Norfolk countryside and on the beautiful Norfolk Coast, because I have spent most of my career in agriculture and it's the environment I know best. The crimes he tackles are issues which I think are important, and which often go unnoticed.'

To quote from an early review,

"Heather Peck has created a winning character in Geldard. He is deeply moral, profoundly loyal (a trait that has hurt him in the past and will again in the future) and a dogged investigator."

Books for Children

Praise for Tails of Two Spaniels

...(my children) wouldn't stop talking about the farm and the animals that lived there. The illustrations are just adorable and definitely give the story that extra touch. Amazon Reader

About the Author

Heather Peck is the author of the award-winning DCI Greg Geldard series, a collection of murder mysteries set in the picturesque landscapes of rural North Yorkshire and Norfolk. Most recently she released her debut children's book, "Tails of Two Spaniels."

The crime series has already won 4 Firebird Book Awards and the second in the series, Glass Arrows, was shortlisted for the East Anglian Book Awards prize for fiction in 2021.

Over the years, Heather has worn many hats, from farmer to agricultural policy adviser. She has bred sheep and alpacas, raised calves, negotiated on behalf of the UK in international fora, specialised in emergency response, managed controls related to pesticides and GM crops, seen legislation through the UK parliament, and even got paid to eat KitKats while on secondment to Nestle Rowntree.

Following early retirement, she chaired an NHS Trust, worked on animal welfare initiatives, sailed the Norfolk Broads, volunteered in Citizens Advice and the Witness Service, and participated in human Covid vaccination efforts.

She lives in Norfolk, nestled between the picturesque Broads and the stunning coastline, where she and her partner, Gary, share their home with a menagerie of two dogs, two cats, two hens, one rabbit, and rather fewer fish than they started out with, courtesy of the local heron.
